

Figure 5b – Gridded time-structure map of the Early Eocene unconformity, annotated to show canyons that transported failed material directly down-slope from the impact site, where a widespread mass transport deposit is recognized. Orange indicates the primary core of the mass transport deposit, while yellow indicates peripheral mass wasted material. There is a high degree of uncertainty about its distribution in deepwater.